

Austria and Northern Europe

Summary of Content

No, Austria is not in Northern Europe; it is a landlocked country located in Central Europe.

Austria is situated in the Eastern Alps and is bordered by Germany, the Czech Republic, Slovakia, Hungary, Slovenia, Italy, Switzerland, and Liechtenstein, placing it firmly in Central Europe rather than Northern Europe . Its geography is largely mountainous, with the Alps covering about 70% of the country, and it lies in the Northern and Eastern hemispheres, but this does not classify it as part of Northern Europe . Northern Europe, as defined by the United Nations geoscheme, includes countries such as Norway, Sweden, Finland, Denmark, Iceland, and the Baltic states (Estonia, Latvia, Lithuania), which are located much farther north and often have Arctic or North Atlantic coastlines . Austria does not share these northern characteristics or political groupings. In summary, Austria is Central European, both geographically and culturally, and is distinct from the Northern European region in terms of climate, latitude, and regional classification .
