

How to price indoor electrical distribution boxes

Summary of Content

Indoor electrical distribution boxes typically range from $20 to $200 per unit, depending on size, material, and features.

Typical Price Ranges

- Basic residential units: Small single-phase boxes for home use generally cost $20-$50 per unit, suitable for a few circuits and standard protection devices .
- Commercial or industrial units: Larger three-phase or multi-circuit boxes with higher amperage capacity can range from $100-$200 or more per unit .
- Custom or OEM enclosures: Customized indoor boxes with specific layouts, branding, or additional features may cost more, with pricing often provided on request by manufacturers .

Factors Affecting Price

- Material and Construction: Plastic enclosures are generally cheaper, while metal or NEMA-rated boxes for industrial use are more expensive .
- Number of Circuits: More circuits require larger boxes and additional components, increasing cost .
- Safety and IP Ratings: Higher protection against dust or accidental contact can raise the price .
- Additional Features: Integrated monitoring, smart controls, or modular designs can add to the cost .
