Summary of Content

The average export price for steel cable trays from North Korea is approximately $206.24 per unit, with variations depending on material, size, and supplier.

Pricing Overview

Based on export data, North Korean cable trays have an average price of $206.24 per unit . Prices can vary depending on the type of steel used (mild steel, galvanized, or stainless steel), tray design (ladder, perforated, or solid), and dimensions. Larger or heavier trays generally cost more due to increased material and manufacturing requirements .

Material and Design Factors

- Mild Steel Trays: Lower cost, suitable for general industrial use; may require powder coating to prevent rust .
- Galvanized Steel Trays: Moderate cost, enhanced corrosion resistance, commonly used in outdoor or humid environments .
- Stainless Steel Trays: Higher cost, superior corrosion resistance, ideal for chemical or high-moisture environments .
- Aluminum Trays: Lightweight and corrosion-resistant, generally cheaper than stainless steel but less strong than steel . Tray design also affects pricing: ladder trays are typically less expensive than perforated or ventilated trays, which require more complex manufacturing .
