

Scrape the fiber optic cable

Summary of Content

Use a specialized fiber optic stripper or slitter to safely remove the outer jacket and coatings without damaging the fiber core.

Tools for Stripping Fiber Optic Cables

To remove the protective layers of a fiber optic cable, you need precision tools designed for fiber optics:

- Fiber Optic Strippers: Tools like the F-STR series or F-JS2 Fiber Jacket Stripper can remove outer jackets, buffers, and polymer coatings safely, leaving the fiber core intact . They are factory-set for accurate stripping and require minimal adjustment.
- FTTH Drop Cable Strippers: These hand tools are ergonomic and allow fast, precise removal of coatings from flat drop cables or ribbon fibers without damaging the fiber .
- Fiber Cable Slitters: Slitters can peel off the outer plastic sheath and internal reinforcements while protecting the fiber core, suitable for various cable diameters and materials .
- Multi-purpose Strippers: Tools like the Kabifix LK25 allow both circular and longitudinal cuts for hard outer sheaths, making them versatile for professional and hobby use .

Stripping Procedure

- Select the correct tool for the cable type and diameter.
- Position the cable in the tool's slot or housing according to the manufacturer's instructions.
