

What are some fiber optic cable factories in the Maldives and West Africa

Summary of Content

In the Maldives, Kelani Cables and Comlink Electronics are key companies involved in fiber optic cable production, while in West Africa, most fiber optic infrastructure is deployed by network operators rather than local factories.

Maldives

- Kelani Cables Maldives Kelani Cables is an ISO 9001:2008 certified company with a strong presence in the cables industry, including fiber optic products. The company has plants in Asia and provides a range of cable solutions suitable for telecom and networking applications .
- Comlink Electronics Founded in 1999, Comlink Electronics specializes in fiber optic cable assemblies, connectors, and related equipment. The company operates multiple factories and focuses on telecom, IT, and industrial applications .
- Other Manufacturers Additional companies such as Erat and NBG Group in the Maldives produce customized fiber optic products, including connectors and assemblies, supporting both domestic and international markets .

West Africa

In West Africa, local fiber optic cable manufacturing is limited, and most infrastructure relies on imported cables and large-scale network projects. Key initiatives include:

- West Africa One Network: An aerial optic fiber transmission system connecting Nigeria, Benin, and Togo, built by Phase3 .
